

Interpretype®

STC2.0 Gen4
Deaf-Friendly Communicator

The most powerful system for conversations between hearing and Deaf individuals now with hands-free speech recognition for classrooms, lectures, and small groups.

Features

The Interpretype Speech-to-Text Communicator is perfect for hearing people that wish to communicate with Deaf individuals using text or their voice. STC2.0 Gen4 includes all the features from the original C2.0 system; face-to-face text communication, connectivity to VRS or VRI, plus the addition of the world's most accurate speech recognition software.

Equipment

The STC2.0 Gen 4 includes 2 Interpretype computers featuring 11.6 inch screens, Windows OS, internal Bluetooth, Interpretype software with Lecture Automation, Speech Recognition software, an approved Lavalier microphone and a carrying case.

Speech-to-Text

Interpretype Speech to Text is enabled in a few brief steps. Open Interpretype and the Speech Recognition programs on the desktop. Next, enable the Interpretype Lecture Automation feature. Then just speak into the wireless microphone with confidence knowing every word is being converted into text and streamed instantly to the Interpretype Client computer. There is no voice training necessary. The microphone can be used by anyone and shared during the conversation. You can also project the conversation onto a large screen for an entire audience to see in larger settings.

Interactive Captioning

Interpretype Lecture Automation enables Deaf individuals to interact with the conversation by simply typing on the Interpretype Client computer. A Deaf individual can easily participate in a classroom or work group environment. Additionally, all text can be saved for printing or deleted as desired. Interpretype provides a verbatim transcript including questions and answers, which can reduce the requirement for notetakers or interpreters.
