Retail Multilane Terminal

Introducing PAX's new retail multilane terminal, the Px7. Its sleek design makes it look more like a tablet than a payment terminal. Its large high resolution color screen, enabling high quality screen capture and showcasing your advertising campaigns, is housed in an ergonomic case that is small and thin. The many different communication options of the Px7 platform and its open architecture software development environment meets the needs for fully or semi-integrated POS configurations alike. Unlike competitor terminals which require the consumer to use a stylus, with the Px7 a stylus pen is no longer needed, but is available as an option, due to the superb finger signature quality of the Px7. This helps to streamline the consumer experience and reduce repair and associated inventory costs.
