

What's A Caterer To Do?

What's a Caterer to Do Part 28

I'm ahead of the game! I haven't been able to say that in a while, since March 13th of last year in fact. It's not quite February 1st, and I remembered to flip the calendar from January to February. This is a huge accomplishment considering there are still some random calendars at the business that are stuck on March of 2020 and maybe even a couple at home.

Sadly, there's not much new to report. We're continuing to move forward, in a very bizarre, outlandish way. We make food, we put it in those darn, relatively unattractive, compartmentalized boxes and we deliver it. People seem to enjoy it... at least that's the feedback that we receive. This past week we actually prepared and delivered a sandwich tray and salad for a group of 20. It did my heart good to see that we still know how to "cater" and that a very brave group of people gathered for a lunch meeting. There is still hope! Our "dinner for four" pick-up on Fridays seems to be gaining a little momentum. Good comments on the pot roast dinner with trimmings this weekend. This coming week we will be offering an "upstate football super menu" featuring many flavors familiar to football Sundays but in a little more healthy fashion. Watch for the blast and send us an email with your order. Lots of protein, not so many carbs!

February, a cold wintry month in upstate New York but lots to look forward to. Once we turn the calendar page to February we see that in addition to the biggest football game of the year, we have a groundhog celebration followed by Valentine's day, then President's day, Mardi Gras, and the beginning of Lent. WOW! Lots of themes for "dinner for four" and special edible tasteful gifts for your Valentine too. Check for that blast too. Oh, I forgot to mention the Roc City Uncorked online auction. www.RocCityUncorked.org is the place to be this week for friendly bidding and outbidding each other for some amazing libations and food opportunities. Check it out! I'll be there. See you there? Starts tomorrow through the 8th. With these cold temperatures and gray days, a little libation might be just what the doctor ordered. Anything for a great cause. Rotary provides lots of funding and assistance to many local causes and charities.

So that's it for now. Sorry that I'm not more inspired this evening. Keep hanging in, keep doing your best, keep being kind and keep on keeping on (whatever that means)! Until next time, stay warm, stay safe and stay healthy. Xoxo Sandra
